Mathematics can consider and apply the weights, distances and time of past performance to the probabilities of the future. But figures cannot - unless mingled with the judgment out of Observation Of racing and knowledge of individual peculiarities - be intelligently applied to racing. Figures, however, even from the foundation Of imperfect timing and report, outclass all other methods Of picking winners. For that reason alone the general honesty Of racing can be proven, accepted and praised. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. This book explores the life of Henry Dresser (1838-1915), one of the most productive British ornithologists of the mid-late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, and is largely based on previously unpublished archival material. Dresser travelled widely and spent time in Texas during the American Civil War. He built enormous collections of skins and eggs of birds from Europe, North America and Asia, which formed the basis of over 100 publications, including some of the finest bird books of the late nineteenth century. Dresser was a leading figure in scientific society and in the early bird conservation movement; his correspondence and diaries reveal the inner workings, motivations, personal relationships and rivalries that existed among the leading ornithologists.
