A pedagogical overview of choice-based art education Colleges and universities engaged in the preparation of art teachers address a broad range of issues. Questions concerning specific education requirements leading to certification, approaches to curriculum development and assessment, opportunities for clinical experiences, and exposure to teaching methodologies and classroom management strategies are common to art teacher preparation programs. Additional questions arise concerning the utilization of technology, the diversity of student populations, and the utilization of museums and community resources. The standards delineated in this booklet are designed to be relevant to those colleges and universities with established art teacher preparation programs of excellence as well as to serve as a guide for programs working to improve their level of professional preparation. Following an introduction, the booklet is divided into these sections: "Standards for the Art Education Program"; "Standards for Art Education Faculty"; "Standards and Skills for Art Teacher Candidates" ("Content of Art"; "Knowledge of Students"; "Curriculum Development"; "Instruction"; "Assessment in Art Education"; "Professional Responsibility"); and "References." (BT) This book includes three full-length exams for the Liberal Arts and Sciences Test (LAST), Assessment of Teaching Skills-Performance (ATS-P), and the Assessment of Teaching Skills--Written (ATS-W) tests. Comprehensive reviews in mathematics, English language and literature, history, the social and physical sciences, and communication skills are included. Essential for anyone seeking a teaching certificate in the state of New York. Are you ready to teach art? Do you understand the organization of visual elements and can you identify various art movements? Test these and other key competencies with this 125-question practice test. Don't let a certification test stand between you and your teaching career, get the guide that gets results! Ed, Florida certification, licensing exam. The purpose of this study was to provide a broadly based description of the National Board Certification process and the perceived impact of the certification portfolio on the reflectivity of the National Board Certified teacher and its corresponding effect since completion. "The National Board Certification assessment process focuses on reflection and inquiry. Applicants submit an extensive portfolio that includes videotape, artifacts, reflective commentary, and documentation" (Kantner et al., 2000, p. 227). National Board Certified teachers have all engaged in a sustained structured process of reflection, both reflection-in-action, and reflection-on-action. They form a unique population of teachers who have been involved in the same detailed examination of their practice. Insights about the reflective experiences of these teachers are of great value to the profession. The framework for the production of portfolios supports the reflective act (National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, 1998b). Portfolios provide vessels for recording and document practice. I asked National Board Certified art teachers to consider their reflectivity prior to certification, to examine their own portfolio processes to consider which entries had the greatest impact on their ability to be reflective teachers, and to suggest how the process changed or enhanced their ability to be reflective practitioners. The respondents were invited to comment on any or all of the questions. The sample consisted of 99 National Board Certified art teachers who had achieved certification in Early Adolescence to Young Adulthood Art between 1996 and 2001. Seventy (N = 70) teachers returned the survey which creates an overall return-rate was 71%. There was one primary research question for the study: In what ways has the act of reflection, through the creation of the National Board Certification portfolio, effected, changed, or enhanced the practice of National Board Certified art teachers? A set of sub-questions served this main question: (1) To what extent did National Board Certified art teachers reflect on their practice before undergoing the certification process? (2) How does the development of the NBCT portfolio facilitate reflection? (3) Which parts of the portfolio process had the greatest subsequent impact on enhancing the teachers' practice? (4) To what extent does the teacher now perceive him or herself to be reflective? (5) What aspects of the teachers' practice have been changed or enhanced as a result of successfully completing the process of National Board Certification? The results of this study highlight the personal journey of certification candidates, and they affirmed that a structured, critical portfolio can be a powerful agent for both the encouragement of positive growth in a professional teaching career, and recognition of a cadre of exemplary professionals for mentoring and leadership roles in the school and professional community. This study also demonstrated that reflective thinking is both the catalyst and the consequence of the certification process. (Abstract shortened by UMI.). Art is something that develops within a person gradually. The techniques and the skills may be taught and direction may be shown but the actual essence of drawing and colouring grows within a person naturally. This is what the Painting guide does. It provides the freshers or learners techniques that should be applied or have to be kept in mind while drawing. Many factors have been kept in mind while writing this book, especially the sessions that i have had with different children at Artacus had helped me immensely in complete understanding of the different techniques that children tend to understand while drawing or colouring with different mediums. This book introduces beginners to several new and easy techniques that are required to make a complete picture. It also guides people who have been learning this for a long time and want to involve with new tips and ideas. ***Includes Practice Test Questions*** Praxis II Art: Content Knowledge (0134 and 5134) Exam Secrets helps you ace the Praxis II: Subject Assessments, without weeks and months of endless studying. In order to carry out this investigation, an autoethnography will be included, which will include personal experiences, such as going through a traditional art teacher certification program, which is a four year Bachelor's degree in art education and observing art teachers who have completed different types of certification, leading me to the conclusion that traditionally certified art teachers are more prepared. "Stuff Happens" and you need to be covered. If you are having a baby, on sabbatical, need to take an extended medical leave, or deal with a family crisis, you need plans for your substitute. An informal Facebook poll of art teachers show a few interesting facts: 1. Most people take 3 months of leave or less. 2. Only about HALF of the substitutes have an art background or certification. 3. Those who took 1- 8 weeks were less likely to have an art certified substitute. 4. Those who took 4 months or more were more likely to have an art certified substitute. This economy black and white book is designed for up to a year of coverage by a non-art specialist with 50 lessons that span kindergarten through 12th grade. Links within lessons will connect with video tutorials. Certified instructors should be allowed more freedom within your classroom. Be clear about what materials you want to be used, and lock up anything you know is too expensive, messy, or special that you have set aside for lessons you have planned for your return. Many explorations in his book can be done with different kinds of media. As you review the projects, make notes, check what you wish to be used, and cross off items you do not. Using This Book: You may find it beneficial to cut the binding of this book, and put the pages through a hole puncher so everything can be added into a binder for your substitute. ***Includes Practice Test Questions*** Secrets of the National Board Certification Art: Early and Middle Childhood Exam helps you ace your NBPTS National Board Certification Exam, without weeks and months of endless studying. Eco-Art Therapy in Practice is uplifting, optimistic, and empowering while outlining cost-effective, time efficient, and research-based steps on how to use nature in session to enhance client engagement and outcomes. Dr. Pike employs her background and credentials as a certified educational leader and board-certified art therapist to walk readers through establishing ecologically-based practices— such as growing art materials using hydroponics regardless of facility constraints. Each chapter is aligned with the continuing education requirements for art therapy board certification renewal to make its relevance clear and to orient the book for future training program integration. Appendices feature clinical directives in easy-to-follow, one-page protocols which encourage readers to consider client needs when applying methods, along with intake forms to bolster real-world application. This text will help clinicians and educators to employ eco-art therapy in practice, in turn empowering their clients and conveying an inclusive message of respect— respect for self, others, community, and the world. The purpose of this study is to understand the perceptions and experiences of Indiana art educators as they transition from initial certification to full time teaching in their field, or other employment. Many art education students who complete programs in teacher education do not find employment in their particular fields of interest. Others may find employment that is quite different from that which they anticipated. This is problematic on many levels. One is that students often feel a sense of failure when they cannot obtain employment after having devoted many years of their lives to training for a career. Another is the question of the implied contract that a school or university makes with students who train for a specific teaching career. While there are many advice texts to guide those searching for teaching positions, searches may differ somewhat from discipline to discipline, and there are few texts that advise on the nature of job searches for art educators. Finally, successfully navigating this process may require skills, personal qualities, social networks, opportunities, and good fortune. Some of these cannot be controlled by teacher preparation programs while others may or may not be explicitly taught. This study is a qualitative interview study. All interviews were conducted over the telephone, recorded and transcribed. Participants were recruited through the Art Education Association of Indiana email list and personal referral. Results indicate that economic considerations, social networks, and opportunities are integral to art educator's experiences, perceptions, and employment outcomes. In conclusion, any disconnect or problem arising in any of the three highlighted categories may have the greatest impact on an individual teacher's post-certification path ***Includes Practice Test Questions*** OSAT Art (002) Secrets helps you ace the Certification Examinations for Oklahoma Educators / Oklahoma Subject Area Tests, without weeks and months of endless studying.
